Credit Card Competition Act: POTUS Support Tracker

President Donald Trump and Vice President J.D. Vance have repeatedly expressed public support for lowering swipe fees and the Credit Card Competition Act (CCCA) in recent months. They know that the CCCA would bring long-overdue competition to the credit card marketplace and help stop the swipe fee ripoff!

Learn more about the CCCA on NACS' Advocacy page.

Recent statements of support from the president and vice president:

- November 1: At a campaign rally for Sen. Roger Marshall, a key sponsor of the CCCA, President Trump lauds the bill saying, "I will sign his bill … limiting out of control … credit card swipe fees, saving you an estimated at least $2,000 per year," Trump said. "That's a big thing … it's important."

- October 26: VP Vance mentions the credit card cartels when commending Sen. Marshall: "Now, I want to talk a little bit about somebody who fights for the workers … whether it's breaking up the credit card cartels to keep you from being unfairly charged at that checkout counter, or protecting the steelworkers …"

- October 19: President Trump says, "Roger is also the number one champion fighting to protect hardworking Americans and small businesses from predatory credit card companies and out of control swipe fees," during a stump speech for Sen. Marshall in Kansas. In a Truth Social post the same evening, the President states, "I will sign it into LAW!" when referring to the CCCA.

- October 12: In a Truth Social post, the President states his continued support for Sen. Marshall, stating: "Roger is working tirelessly to pass the Credit Card Competition Act, in order to stop the out of control Swipe Fee ripoff!"

- September 18: In a recorded message, President Trump indicates that the CCCA will be passed soon: "… a bill we're going to pass as soon as possible – it's going to happen quickly – to eliminate out of control credit card swipe fees."

- September 14: VP Vance highlights Sen. Marshall's efforts to cut credit card swipe fees during Kansas visit: "An issue that's close to my heart, that Roger and I worked on when we were in the Senate together: He has been the leader in the fight against Wall Street to bring down out-of-control credit card swipe fees, which is going to make life affordable for everyday Kansans and everyday Americans."

- September 9: President Trump promises to cut out of control credit card swipe fees at GOP midterm convention in Dallas: “We’ll cut out of control credit card swipe fees, saving the average family at least $1,200 per year. And we’ll not allow Americans to pay seven to eight times more for those fees than they do in any other country.”

- August 3: In a Truth Social post, the President expresses his support for Sen. Marshall for “working tirelessly to pass the Credit Card Competition Act, in order to stop the out of control Swipe Fee ripoff!”

- January 13: In a Truth Social post, the President states, “Everyone should support great Republican Senator Roger Marshall’s Credit Card Competition Act, in order to stop the out of control Swipe Fee ripoff.”